Black clothes and red lipstick

Rustenburg – Female officials from the Department of Correctional Services wore black clothing and red lipstick to protest the staggering amounts of abducted and brutally murdered women in South Africa on Friday, 26 May 2017.

The clarion call from management followed a recent surge of gruesome murders on women. The campaign aimed to highlight the plight of women and children in an effort to fight against the upsurge in gender based violence that is being inflicted on these vulnerable groups in society.

"The campaign further has particular relevance to the role of Department of Correctional Services to rehabilitate offenders, some of whom have committed crimes against women and children," Ramonnye Advice, spokesperson of the department, said.

Matthew 1:19-20

"Because Joseph her husband was a righteous man and did not want to expose her to public disgrace, he had in mind to divorce her quietly. But after he had considered this, an angel of the Lord appeared to him in a dream and said, 'Joseph son of David, do not be afraid to take Mary home as your wife, because what is conceived in her is from the Holy Spirit.'"
