FLAMES OF FURY

A house on the corner of President Thabo Mbeki and Dawes Streets, East End

Rustenburg – Two nights of absolute terror is what the community of the East End in Rustenburg experienced on the nights of Tuesday, 7 November and Wednesday, 8 November.

Groups of people took the law into their own hands by petrol bombing three different houses occupied by foreign nationals. These groups believe that it is these foreigners who were responsible for the disappearance of Gomolemo Habara. They vowed to keep up the violence until Gomolemo was safely returned to her family.

On Thursday, 9 November, the 14-year old Gomolemo Karabo Haraba of Rustenburg's Technical High School was found and returned to her family. At the time of going to print, no additional details were available.

In all the chaos, the Police and the various community policing forums banded together to safeguard the community. Community policing forum members were at the municipal flats for the aged to see to it that the elderly people were indeed safe from smoke inhalation and out of danger. Wednesday night, 7 November, two of the houses which were burnt the previous night were set alight again. The fires were reported and Rustenburg's Fire Brigade went to the scene. Upon the arrival of the Fire Brigade, an angry mob of residents threatened to set the Fire Brigades vehicles alight, leaving them with their hands tied and unable to put out the flames. One person was arrested for the possession of a petrol bomb. Investigations continue.

Community for Jesus national conference

Rustenburg – Community for Jesus (CFJ) held their 47th annual national conference in Rustenburg, Freedom Park, from 2-6 October. The conference was well attended by church leaders coming from all over the country as well as Botswana. Bishop CA Chauke reminded all the delegates, that as leaders they must understand that there are challenges that will affect them, and can have negative influence on their decision-making process. "What is important is that church leaders must walk the talk and lead by example, irrespective of the situation." Bishop Chauke further reiterated that the church faces internal and external forces, but that the church must create an environment of peace and unity. "Once church members are united, they can easily conquer any challenge," he said.

Says Life president, archbishop AV Silwana: "Persistence should be your leading characteristic, especially during trying times." Archbishop Silwana also urged that CFJ should be beneficial to all its members in its communities.

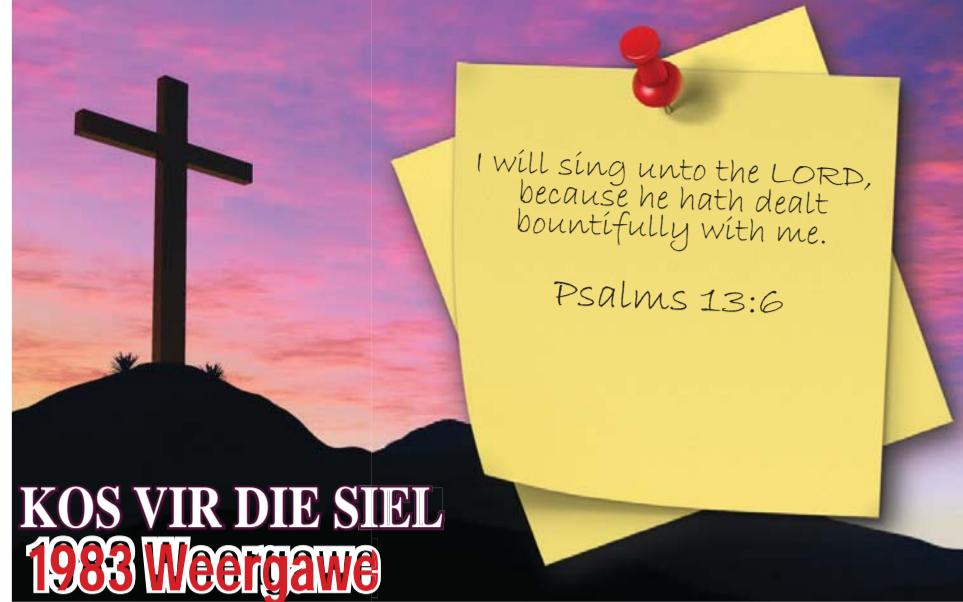

Says archbishop NS Sithole, national spokesperson: "One of the burning issues at this stage is the lack of funding to secure land to erect church structures. This issue affects a majority of independent churches. We must be innovative in solving this challenge."
