

Protect your pets from cat flu

Rustenburg – Taking care of our pets is a priority for most of us; they need us, their humans to take care of them.
“Parvovirus, better known as ‘cat flu’ has reached epidemic proportions in the last few months in Rustenburg,” a facebook post of Bergbos Animal Clinic reads. The clinic has notified the public on different social media platforms of the threat our animals, mainly puppies, are facing.
To curb this highly infectious virus, animals need to be vaccinated against this disease. Puppies need to be vaccinated at six, ten and twelve weeks of age. Symptoms of the virus include a loss of appetite, vomiting and diarrhoea.
The public are requested to get their pups vaccinated and to keep to their vaccination schedule to put an end to this virus.

ONLY RUMOURS: Nigerians shoot 2 SA residents

Rustenburg – Rumours have been doing the rounds about two Nigerian nationals who had apparently shot and killed two South African citizens in Rustenburg this week, which reportedly lead to road closures in certain parts of the central business district (CBD).
This rumour is in fact not true, as confirmed by police spokesperson, captain Elsabé Augoustides: “This is a malicious rumour that has the potential of starting up clashes between foreign nationals and South African citizens. We ask everyone to remain calm and to not take the law into their own hands.”
