Ottosdal – Offices belonging to the Tswaing Local Municipality and a community library in Letsopa were torched by angry residents of Ottosdal on Wednesday 10 July during a protest due to poor service delivery. The protestors, who blame the Tswaing mayor for failing to address issues they raised in a memorandum of demands submitted a month before, also vandalised the local police station and torched three vehicles. Lack of proper housing, poor electricity supply, the unavailability of recreational facilities, high levels of crime and unemployment as well as poor sanitary facilities and intermittent water supply were among the issues that drove the community to protest. A spokesperson for the North West Department of Local Government and Human Settlements, Dineo Thapelo, told Platinum Weekly that an assessment is underway in order to calculate the financial damages caused by the protest.

“At this moment we are unable to quantify the damages. It is very frustrating for local government when communities destroy their own facilities,” Dineo added.

Protest turns violent.

RAPIST BEHIND BARS

Rustenburg – The 42-year old James Tshepo Marobi, who was accused of raping a 15-year old girl, was sentenced to life imprisonment on Tuesday 2 July 2019 by the Thlabane Magistrates' Court.

According to police spokesperson captain Elsabé Augoustides, the teenager was on her way back from the clinic on 11 November 2015 when the suspect, who lives in her neighbourhood, grabbed her, and forced her into his house where he raped her.

Someone knocked at the door and she managed to escape. “The girl was very frightened, to such an extent that she only told her mother of the incident the next day.” The SAPS were alerted and arrested the suspect three days later.

The case was remanded several times. The accused remained in custody until his sentencing. The investigating officer, sergeant Phenyo Monchusi, is congratulated for a job well done.

Sergeant Phenyo Monchusi played a vital role in securing the conviction.
