

LIONS POISONED AND MUTILATED

Brits – On Thursday 12 September, lion poachers struck again in the Assen area near Brits. Five lions – two large males, a female and two cubs – were poisoned at a lodge. The heads of the two male lions were taken and the one's paws removed.

In an interview with Platinum Weekly, Crocodile Community Protection Group (CCPG) chairperson Chris Degenaar said: "Poaching is a crisis and the market is only getting bigger. I urge game farmers to be extra vigilant and tighten their security."

"TO GOD BE ALL THE GLORY"

One of the lions, poisoned and mutilated.

Thirteen crocodiles were found in the suspects' possession.

Brits – Two suspects, aged 32 and 28, were arrested on Saturday 14 September at Rooikoppies, close to Brits, for the possession and transportation of 13 crocodiles worth R40,000.

They appeared before the Brits Magistrates' Court on Monday 16 September.

According to police spokesperson Maria Nkabinde, the suspects – Trevious Shumba and Tavina Bulabula – are employees at a local farm in the area.

Reports state that while the suspects were in the process of selling crocodiles, the buyer was unhappy with the price and alerted the owner.

The police were notified and the duo were intercepted and charged with contravention of the National Environmental Management Biodiversity (Nemba) Act (Act No 10 of 2004), for possession and transportation of crocodiles without a permit.

They are expected to re-appear before the same court on Monday, 23 September for a formal bail application.
