

Fetus found in Seraleng drain

The scene in Seraleng, Rustenburg, where a passer-by discovered a fetus floating in a stormwater drain.

CONCEALMENT OF BIRTH

Platinum Weekly newspaper | Rustenburg – A passer-by discovered a fetus, a developing baby in the womb, floating in a stormwater drain in Seraleng, Rustenburg.

Colonel Adele Myburgh, acting provincial head of communications and liaison for the South African Police Service (SAPS), confirmed that Boitekong police are investigating a case of concealment of birth. The investigation continues, and no arrests had been made.

The circumstances surrounding the discovery on Sunday, 13 September 2026, have not yet been established. However, it brings an important message back into focus: anyone facing an unplanned pregnancy or struggling to care for a baby should know where to turn for help.

An unplanned pregnancy can leave someone frightened, isolated or unsure what to do. Financial pressure, fear of family reactions and a lack of support can make the situation feel overwhelming. Whatever your circumstances, please seek help before taking a step that could endanger you or your baby.

Help starts with one conversation

Visit your nearest clinic, hospital or Department of Social Development office. You do not need to have all the answers. Start by saying: "I am pregnant and need help," or "I cannot care for my baby. Please help me speak to a social worker."

A social worker can assess your circumstances and discuss support to help you care for your child, possible temporary care arrangements or formal adoption.

If you are considering adoption, an adoption social worker can explain the process and provide counselling before you consent. Adoption follows a formal legal procedure involving the children's court. Under section 233(8) of the Children's Act, a person who has signed consent to adoption may withdraw it within 60 days of signing.

If the baby has already been born

Seek help at a hospital and tell staff that you need medical attention and assistance with the baby's care. Ask for a social worker. Do not leave the baby unattended or walk away without arranging care with staff.

If you have a miscarriage or stillbirth

Seek medical attention and tell healthcare staff what happened. They can explain the necessary medical and reporting procedures. Do not hide or dispose of the remains.

What does the law say?

Abandoning a child is a criminal offence under the Children's Act. Asking for help allows healthcare staff and social workers to work with you towards a safe, lawful solution.

You do not need to know what to do next before asking for help.

Fatal stabbing in Phokeng:
HUSBAND ARRESTED
WITHIN HOURS

Platinum Weekly newspaper | Phokeng – A 50-year-old man accused of fatally stabbing his wife at their marital home in Platinum Village was arrested within hours after information from a community member helped police locate him. According to police spokesperson colonel Anne Magakoe, the incident was reported at approximately 13:00 on Tuesday, 29 September 2026. The suspect allegedly fled the scene, prompting police to launch a manhunt. About 10 hours later, at approximately 23:00, police received information that he was allegedly hiding at Plastic View informal settlement in Zinniaville. Members of the Phokeng Crime Prevention Unit followed up on the information, arrested the suspect and recovered what police described as the murder weapon. The man appeared in the Tlhabane Magistrates' Court on Thursday, 1 October, facing a charge of murder. He was remanded in custody and is due to return to court on Monday, 12 October 2026. North West provincial commissioner lieutenant general Arthur Peter Adams commended the officers for their swift response, information gathering and arrest. He also thanked the community member whose information helped police find the suspect.

Air Force lifts injured
to safety

Platinum Weekly newspaper | Magaliesberg – An eight-metre fall left a hiker with multiple spinal fractures on Sunday afternoon, 13 September 2026, prompting a challenging helicopter rescue after dark by the South African Air Force (SAAF) and mountain rescue specialists. According to Mountain Search and Rescue (MSAR), the man fell from a rock outcrop, struck rocks and landed in a pool. His hiking companions helped him out of the water to prevent hypothermia, then kept him immobile and called for assistance. A Mountain Club of South Africa (MCSA) Gauteng rescue team and a paramedic rushed to the scene while an Oryx helicopter crew from SAAF 17 Squadron received permission to prepare for the operation. The rescuers faced a difficult decision. Helicopter operations after dark carry greater risks and require considerable skill, but carrying a patient with serious spinal injuries over the kloof's steep, rough terrain could have caused further harm. A night hoist was considered the safer option for the injured man. The ground team treated his pain and fully immobilised him on a stretcher and vacuum mattress. Arriving after sunset, the helicopter hoisted the stretcher and a rescuer out of the kloof before returning to Pretoria, where the hiker was admitted to hospital in a stable but critical condition. MSAR praised the crew's expertise, highlighting the specialised training needed to conduct night hoist rescues using night vision goggles. The organisation explained that maintaining this capability is not commercially viable for most private helicopter emergency medical service providers, making the SAAF a valuable resource when other rescue options are limited. The operation took place as Air Force crews were preparing for the Africa Aerospace and Defence Expo 2026 at Waterkloof Air Force Base. For this hiker, those capabilities served a far more immediate purpose: bringing him to safety when the terrain and darkness made rescue especially difficult. MSAR wished him a full recovery, acknowledging the long and difficult journey ahead.

The SAAF 17 Squadron Oryx helicopter used to hoist the injured hiker out of a Magaliesberg kloof after sunset.

A LIFE TAKEN AT A FARM GATE

Two arrested after Hannetjie van Zyl's death, third suspect sought

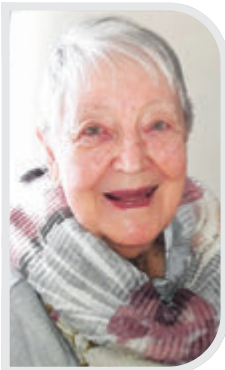

Platinum Weekly newspaper | Ottosdal – A routine moment at a farm gate ended in tragedy when Hannetjie van Zyl (55) was attacked at Doornpan Farm outside Ottosdal on Monday evening, 5 October 2026. According to police spokesperson sergeant Kelebogile Morake, the police responded after receiving a report of a possible farm attack. Van Zyl was attacked while opening a gate to enter the farm. On arrival, officers were informed that her husband had taken her to a hospital in Klerksdorp after she sustained injuries. According to the police statement, she later died in hospital. Two men, aged 32 and 33, were arrested in connection with the murder after being identified by a witness. A third suspect remains at large. The two arrested suspects are expected to appear before the Ottosdal Magistrate's Court on Thursday, 8 October 2026, facing murder charges. The circumstances surrounding the attack remain under investigation. North West provincial police commissioner lieutenant general Arthur Peter Adams condemned the incident, extended his condolences to the Van Zyl family and commended the investigating team for the swift arrests. Behind this murder investigation is a family facing an immeasurable loss. Platinum Weekly extends its deepest condolences to Hannetjie's husband, family and loved ones. Violence in our farming communities leaves wounds that reach far beyond the scene of an attack.

Our Ward Matters turns neglect into neighbourhood pride

Making a visible difference: OWM's clean-up at Moepel Substation and around Wildevy Centre on Tuesday, 29 September 2026.

Platinum Weekly newspaper | Rustenburg
– Cleaner streets and safer surroundings start with people willing to roll up their sleeves. Our Ward Matters (OWM) is doing just that, clearing overgrown vegetation, collecting litter and encouraging residents to take pride in their neighbourhoods. Founded by Ward 15 councillor André van Dyk and led by him and councillor Tanya Rothman, the initiative remains active in Wards 15, 16 and 17.

Helping hands fuel the clean-up
On Tuesday, 29 September 2026, OWM continued cleaning around Moepel Substation and the open veld near Wildevy Centre. Team members removed illegally dumped waste, cut back vegetation and cleared weeds encroaching onto the road, and began improving the garden at the corner of Wildevy and Kruger streets. OWM thanked Jacques from Wildevy Centre and Vista Café for sponsoring 20 litres of petrol to keep the brushcutters running. Rustenburg Local Municipality's (RLM) Waste Department supplied a skip for the collected waste.

A coffee, a kindness and a thank you
After a day's work on Monday, 5 October, the OWM team received a welcome treat near Coffee on Safari. Owner Linda invited team members to enjoy a coffee or Freezo of their choice in appreciation of their efforts. OWM thanked Linda and her staff for their generosity and warm welcome, encouraging residents to support businesses that support community initiatives. Those who care deserve to work safely
Work continued around Wildevy and Kruger on Monday, 5 October, beginning near Rustenburg Baptist Church. Pastor Jackie Gouws discussed concerns in the area with the team and offered encouragement for the week ahead. Alarmingly, an Expanded Public Works Programme (EPWP) worker serving on its team was allegedly assaulted, verbally abused and threatened while working. The Community Policing Forum (CPF) and Outdoor Arena Security assisted at the scene. Van Dyk said the team had worked in the area for more than nine months, helping improve surroundings used by Protea Park Laerskool,

RUSTENBURG SE ROL IN DIE GESKIEDENIS VAN DIE DRIE SUSTERKERKE

Platinum Weekly koerant | Rustenburg – Die Nederduitse Gereformeerde Kerk (NGK), in kort die NG Kerk, die oudste van die drie is gestig met die koms van Jan van Riebeeck in 1652 in Kaapstad. Dit het saam met die trekke binneland toe versprei. Die Rustenburg Moedergemeente is die tweede oudste NG-gemeente noord van die Vaalrivier (naas Potchefstroom) en is op 21 Januarie 1850 gestig. Na die Groot Trek was die Voortrekkers in die Transvaal kerklik herderloos, omdat die Kaapse NG Kerk die Trek veroordeel het. Die Voortrekkers wou niks met die Kaapse kerk of die Britse owerheid te doen hê nie. In 1850 is die Nederduitsch Hervormde Kerk van Afrika (NHKA), in kort die Hervormde Kerk, se Rustenburg gemeente gestig as die tweede oudste gemeente in Transvaal. Die deurbraak kom in 1853 toe 'n jong predikant uit Nederland, ds. Dirk van der Hoff, hom in Transvaal vestig. In Augustus 1853 is die heel eerste amptelike Algemene Kerkvergadering (Sinode) van die NHKA in Rustenburg gehou. Hier is die NHKA verklaar as die amptelike staatskerk van die nuwe Zuid-Afrikaansche Republiek (ZAR). Die staat en die kerk was een; die Transvaalse Vierkleur-vlag is selfs later by die kerk ingewy, en Paul Kruger (wat toe nog 'n jong man was) was 'n trotse lidmaat van hierdie kerk in Rustenburg.

Die “Seringboom-Rebellie” (1859)
Die eenheid het nie lank gehou nie. In die Rustenburg-gemeente was daar mense (onder leiding van die Kruger-familie) wat geweier het om die “Evangeliese Gesange” te sing wat saam met Van der Hoff ingebring is. Hulle wou net Psalms sing. Toe ds. Dirk Postma in 1858 uit Nederland aankom om hierdie beswaardes te ondersteun, het die spanning oorgekook. Op 11 Februarie 1859 wou 311 beswaarde lidmate van Rustenburg amptelik afstig. Die Hervormde Kerkraad van Rustenburg was so kwaad dat hulle geweier het om hul kerkgebou aan die “Dopper-rebelle” beskikbaar te stel. Gevolglik moes Paul Kruger en die stigters van die Gereformeerde Kerke in Suid-Afrika (GKSA), in kort die Gereformeerde Kerk letterlik straataf stap en die nuwe kerk onder 'n makseringboom buite die gebou stig. Dié historiese seringboomstam staan vandag nog in Rustenburg as 'n nasionale monument. Platinum Weekly het onlangs die monument, wat in Kerkstraat in die parkeerarea oorkant Checkers in die sentrale besigheidsgebied van Rustenburg is, besoek. In Februarie 1947 het die S.A. Historiese Monumentekommisie hierdie boomstomp tot 'n historiese monument verklaar, en 'n tweede gedenkplaat met 'n gepaste bewoording is ook daarop aangebring. In Maart 1959, tydens die eeufees van die Gereformeerde Kerk in S.A., het groot getalle feesgangers van alle dele van S.A. asook oorsese lande hierdie boomstomp besoek. Tydens die Transvaalse Burgeroorlog (1860–1864) was die gort weer gaar in Rustenburg. Dit was 'n fisiese, gewapende stryd waarby die kerklike faksies en die staat direk betrokke was. Die oorsaak: Die mense van die ZAR was diep verdeeld oor wie die wettige president moes wees (Stephanus Schoeman vs. Willem van Rensburg). Hierdie politieke stryd het vinnig in 'n kerklike faksiestryd oertaard. Die Hervormde volksleier Schoeman het 'n weermag (die “Volksleër”) op die been gebring, terwyl Paul Kruger (nou die kommandant-generaal en verdediger van die nuwe Dopperkerk en die staat) die “Staatsleër” gelei het. Die fisiese botsing: In Januarie 1864 het hierdie twee weermagte mekaar fisies buite Rustenburg gepak by die Slag van Krokodilrivier. Gewere is afgevuur, kanonne is ingespan, en mense is doodgeskiet in 'n broermoordoorlog tussen die faksies. Kruger het uiteindelik vir Schoeman oorwin en Rustenburg ingeneem. Hierdie paar dae van fisiese oorlog het die spanning tussen die verskillende kerklike groepe vir dekades daarna gesementeer.

Die Bitter Eiendomsoorlog (1885–1895)
Asof dit nie genoeg was nie, het die oorblywende Hervormers en NG-lidmate in 1885 besluit om saam te smelt om die stryd te beëindig. Dit was 'n ramp. Baie Hervormers op Rustenburg het geweier om hul identiteit op te gee en het die samesmelting teengestaan. 'n Bitter “eiendomsoorlog” het in die howe uitbreek oor wie die eienaar van die fisiese kerkgeboue en die geskiedkundige Kerkplein op Rustenburg was. In 1894 het die Hooggeregshof beslis dat die NHKA (Hervormde Kerk) die volle eienaar is van die eiendom. Die faksie wat wou saamsmelt (die NG Kerk) is letterlik van die perseel afgesit. In Julie 1895 moes die veramde NG-gemeentelede met “vele trane, bitter en platgeslaan” hul geliefde kerkgebou op die plein vir oulaas verlaat. Die ZAR-regering moes inderhaas vir hulle vier nuwe erwe in die dorp skenk sodat hulle 'n nuwe kerk kon bou (die huidige NG Moederkerk op Rustenburg). Onlangs was die drie susterkerke in die nuus met die NG Kerk en die Hervormde Kerk se protes teen die GKSA (Gereformeerde Kerk) Algemene Sinode se ultimatum oor die uitsluiting van vroue in die amp. Die geskiedenis van die kerke rondom Rustenburg is dus geensins vaal of vervelig nie – dit was letterlik 'n stryd vir eienaarskap, belydenis, en politieke mag wat met gewere en hofsake besleg is! Ten spyte van die onlangse spanning en formele meningsverskille oor vroue in die amp, vind die drie kerke steeds belangrike gemeenskaplike grond op ander vlakke: Die Nuwe Afrikaanse Bybelvertaling is in 2006 begin en is na 15 jaar se intensiewe werk deur meer as 170 medewerkers afgehandel en bekendgestel in November 2020. Al drie kerke werk steeds nou en harmonieus saam binne die Bybelgenootskap van Suid-Afrika. Hulle stem volkome ooreen oor die noodsaaklikheid, teologiese akkuraatheid en ondersteuning van die Bybelgenootskap. Dit bring teoloë en taalkundiges van al drie kerke gereeld by dieselfde tafel uit. Gemeenskaplike belydenisbasis: Al drie kerke beklemtoon gereeld dat hulle ten spyte van strukturele verskille onwrikbaar bly ooreenstem oor die Drie Formuliere van Eenheid (die Heidelbergse Kategismus, die Nederlandse Geloofsbelijdenis en die Dordtse Leerreëls). Hulle stem saam dat hierdie historiese dokumente die kern van die gereformeerde identiteit in Suid-Afrika vorm. Konserwatiewe maatskaplike waardes: Oor sake soos die beskerming van geloofsvryheid in Suid-Afrika, morele waardes in die samelewing, en die hantering van algemene maatskaplike verval, praat die leierskap van die kerke dikwels met dieselfde stem. Rustenburg se kerkgeskiedenis vertel van geloof, verdeeldheid en pogings tot eenheid. Die Seringboommonument herinner ons hoe diep dié geskiedenis in die dorp gewortel is.

Die Seringboommonument in Kerkstraat, Rustenburg, herdenk die stigting van die Gereformeerde Kerk op 11 Februarie 1859 – 'n klein monument met diep wortels in die dorp se kerkgeskiedenis.

crèches, churches, businesses and residents. He appealed to the community and relevant authorities to help protect those doing this work. Three areas, one shared responsibility
On Thursday, 1 October, Rothman led clean-up efforts across three areas. Team members cleared branches between Springbokpark and Impalapark, using a skip supplied by the RLM Waste Department, and cut overgrown grass in Nylapies. The EPWP OWM team also tackled grass and litter in the Timbati veld in the Rivers area. The discovery of further illegal dumping prompted an appeal for residents to take responsibility for their waste. With petrol, equipment, brushcutter line, maintenance, protective clothing and refuse bags adding to daily costs, OWM is calling on more residents, businesses and churches to contribute. Every contribution helps the team return to the streets and continue its work. WANT TO HELP?

Your neighbours. Your safety. Your CPF.

Know your CPF, know your community: the Rustenburg CPF's guide explains how to identify legitimate members, find your sector representatives and connect with local safety structures.

Platinum Weekly newspaper | Rustenburg – Sometimes, helping someone starts with a flat tyre or a water leak. Sometimes, it means supporting a person facing crime or gender-based violence. For Rustenburg's Community Policing Forum (CPF), serving the community means caring about the people behind every call for help. CPF chairperson Marcus Haasbroek says that commitment comes from the heart. "For us, the CPF is more than something to do. It is our passion," he said. "We are proud to serve Rustenburg and happy to help anyone who needs us." While community safety remains central to its work, Haasbroek says members also lend a hand with everyday difficulties, particularly those affecting elderly residents. These small acts of support reflect the same purpose that drives the forum's community projects: being there when people need help. Working alongside the South African Police Service (SAPS), security companies and Rustenburg Municipality, the CPF helps connect residents with those responsible for their safety. "We have helped close the communication gap between the community and SAPS," Haasbroek said. "It is encouraging to see the different role players working together, alongside the CPF." For residents, knowing who represents their neighbourhood is an important part of building that trust. The CPF encourages people to ask members to verify their identity. Active members carry a pocket-sized photo identification card showing their name, sector and identification number. Newly appointed members can provide an official membership letter on Rustenburg CPF letterhead, signed by their sector chairperson or an executive member, with identifying information and contact details. Residents can also visit the community notice board inside Rustenburg Police Station. It displays the boundaries of sectors 1 to 6, covering areas from the eastern parts of town to Safari Gardens and beyond, along with committee members' names, photographs and contact numbers for emergencies and community reporting. Anyone wanting to join the CPF, check a member's credentials or find their sector can enquire at the station or speak to the relevant Sector Community Policing Officer (CPO), who serves as a link between residents, the CPF and SAPS. Haasbroek also addressed safety during voting, saying police and other role players would assist with visible policing and additional resources on the ground. He urged residents to remain vigilant, calm and patient, particularly when queues, weather conditions or heightened emotions make the process frustrating. Through both practical assistance and partnerships, the CPF's message is personal: a safer Rustenburg begins with people who care enough to get involved. For photos of the CPF executive committee, read the article on our website.

Rustenburg has the heart, now it needs the connection

Khulisa members and community participants united at Heartbeat Rustenburg 2026 to strengthen cooperation under the theme "One Community. One Heart. One Future."

Platinum Weekly newspaper | Rustenburg – A family may receive help from five organisations, complete five forms and appear in five files – yet still have no coordinated support plan. This example captured the central message of Khulisa Social Solutions' Heartbeat Rustenburg 2026 event: Rustenburg is not short of people and organisations working to help. The challenge is connecting those efforts to achieve greater collective impact.

Held at The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints on Tuesday 29 September 2026, the H.E.A.R.T. Year 1 Impact Event marked World Heart Day under the theme "One Community. One Heart. One Future." Funded by the Sibanye Rustenburg Mine Community Development Trust, it brought community organisations and public and private sector representatives together to discuss Rustenburg's social challenges.

The event opened with a performance of "One Heart, One Future" by Aobakwe, a graduate of Khulisa's diversion programme. The song reflected the spirit of the day - strengthening community connections and moving from conversation towards collective action. According to Khulisa's Craig Setzin, Rustenburg has committed people, active organisations and valuable community knowledge. What is missing is stronger coordination.

Findings from Khulisa's dialogue circles, stakeholder consultations and research highlighted interconnected concerns, including gender-based violence, unemployment, substance abuse, family breakdown, trauma and limited access to support. Gender-based violence and unemployment emerged particularly strongly.

Over the past four years, Khulisa and its partners reported reaching 26,466 people across Rustenburg's mining communities and facilitating 362 dialogue circles. Between July 2025 and July 2026, 13 circles involving 886 participants explored issues including mental wellness, women's economic empowerment, conflict and environmental challenges.

At the event, representatives from the Public Protector, Department of Education, Royal Bafokeng structures, Impala Platinum Mine, the National Youth Development Agency and approximately 16 community-based and non-profit organisations attended. Khulisa presented its Collaborative Implementation Model, which brings community experiences, research, resources and development investment into a shared information base. The aim is to identify gaps, reduce duplication and improve access to support.

Khulisa is already supporting local organisations through mentoring, programme development and monitoring. By September 2027, it aims to help stakeholders establish shared community information, an investment map, a verified organisation database and systems to track commitments and review progress.

"Rustenburg already has committed people, active organisations and strong community voices," said Setzin. "The next step is to connect these efforts, align our resources, and work together in a way that produces visible, measurable change."

Residents can participate in local programmes, share their experiences or volunteer their skills. Contact Khulisa's Rustenburg office at 7 Zending Street, Rustenburg, on 079 064 9033, or follow its social media pages.

Sister act brings international crowns home

Proudly representing South Africa, Naledi Khunou was crowned Miss Teen Nations 2026 and also won the Best National Costume award in Curitiba, Brazil.

Double delight for Remofilwe "Remo" Khunou, who won Little Miss Nations 2026 and placed first runner-up in Little Princess of the Sea 2026.

Platinum Weekly newspaper | Rustenburg – Two sisters, one proud family and a celebration reaching all the way from Brazil to South Africa. Naledi and Remofilwe Khunou shone on the international pageant stage in Curitiba, Brazil, where they were crowned on 27 September 2026.

Naledi won Miss Teen Nations 2026 and the Best National Costume award, celebrating her South African heritage in style. Her younger sister, Remofilwe, affectionately known as Remo, competed in two competitions, winning Little Miss Nations 2026 and finishing as first runner-up in Little Princess of the Sea 2026. She also earned a modelling winner's award, according to GlobeModelLook owner and founder Lizelle Jacobs.

For their mother, Rorisang Khunou, the experience meant far more than bringing home crowns. "This victory is more than a crown. It celebrates intercultural exchange, diversity and the lasting friendships formed between young people from around the world," she said.

Behind the sisters' success stood a dedicated circle of supporters. Rorisang thanked Lizelle Jacobs and Zorina from Globe Modellook for their mentorship, guidance and belief in the girls; Amanda Kriel, national director of Little Miss Nations South Africa, for the opportunity and support; and Israel from ISSOD for his choreography and preparation. She also expressed heartfelt gratitude to family, friends, the girls' respective schools, Bergsig Academy and Fields College, and everyone who helped make the journey possible. "This victory belongs to all of you," she said.

Lizelle was proud of the sisters, who travelled to Brazil carrying their dreams and representing both South Africa and Globe Modellook. "Watching both of you step onto an international stage with confidence, courage and grace has been incredibly special," she said. "You showed the world that our young South African talent can stand proudly alongside competitors from around the globe."

Her message to the girls was warm and personal: while their titles are wonderful achievements, she is especially proud of the young women they are becoming. "Keep dreaming, keep growing and keep shining. This is only the beginning!"

Did you know?

YOUR TYRES DON'T STOP LIGHTNING! Your car's rubber tyres do not protect you from lightning. In a fully enclosed vehicle with a metal roof and sides, the outer metal shell conducts the electrical current around the occupants and towards the ground. Keep the windows closed and avoid touching exposed metal or plugged-in electrical devices. Convertibles and open vehicles do not offer the same protection. A strike can still damage tyres, windows and electronics – so while the car may help protect you, it could need more than a service afterwards!
